How The Devil Wins Election

By Brother Nathanael Kapner September 9, 2016 ©

IF YOU'RE THINKING of running for office, even for president, you might want to use the Hillary Clinton model.

With her campaign as your example you can get away with murder (she did in Benghazi) and still have a chance at winning.

What you need to do, (it will sell your soul to the devil, Hillary certainly doesn't care), is to tout what pleases the Jews.

Why, you might ask, do I need to please the Jews?

Don't you know that every single component of political machinery is controlled by Jews?

Even Jimmy Carter, tarred a 'Jew-hater' for it, said, "The Israel Lobby is so powerful that all US politicians are beholden to the Lobby's agenda."

Better take a lesson in how the world works. Jews control it all, even world trade.

So here's a list, you can check it twice, it's really quite naughty, but Jews think it nice:

Promote homosexuality, lesbianism, transgenderism, and all types of sexual perversion.

Clinton is the pervert's best friend. She often speaks at the Human Rights Campaign (HRC), a Jew-supported LGBT lobby, designed to undermine Christian morality in our Jew-ruined country.

This fits right in with Jewry's Protocols of the Elders of Zion whose agenda is to corrupt the morals of stable countries. For where sin reigns, Jews have easy sway over the debauched masses.

Promote the mass murder of unborn children, euphemistically called, "Women's Reproductive Rights."

Abortion on demand is at the top of Clinton's platform. She promises to make every American pay for infanticide if she becomes president.

Promote Russo-phobia and Russia-bashing. Do so in all ways possible.

Lie, falsify, misstate, misquote, contort, distort, and construe a string of fables of how Russia is Jewmerica's new enemy du jour.

Clinton is a master of Russia-bashing. She does it to please neocon Jews who are traitors of not only the Republican Party which they've spurned and abandoned, but of the US by putting Israel's interests ahead of America's.

"YOU ARE OF YOUR FATHER THE DEVIL," said Christ to the hateful Jews.

Coughing fits are one thing, but lies and murderous plans are quite another.

When the devil coughs he spits out a glut of blasphemies.

When Hillary Clinton coughs she spits out a glut of pro-Jewish policies.

What's good for Satan and sons is dire for America.

Street Evangelism Report
Day 1, September 6 2016
Washington DC

I got off the plane around 3 PM and as I walked into the terminal there were 2 Tibetan monks sitting across the main aisle.

Our eyes caught each other and I went right up to them and said, "hello my brothers!" and made the sign of the Cross over them both and they bowed their heads reverently.

One was in his late sixties, and very thin, and very prayerful looking. The other was younger, in his late 30s, and was robust and talkative, and spoke very good English, although he was Tibetan. The older Tibetan monk was friendly looking, smiled kindly, but rather quiet, but intently was engaged in the conversation.

The younger Tibetan monk immediately asked me, "where is your monastery?," and I told him that I was in an Orthodox monastery for many years and now in public ministry.

He asked, "what is your ministry?," and as I told him that I hold high the Holy Cross of Christ on median strips across the country, suddenly an Ethiopian Orthodox Christian woman in her 40s walks up to me and in front of the Tibetan monks, (and before a host of travelers,) leaned her forehead against my large Cross, kissed it, and then walked reverently away.

I said to the Tibetan monks, "See that? The Ethiopian Orthodox Christians are not "politically correct" but in front of everyone are not ashamed to kiss the Holy Cross of Christ.

They both acknowledged that and were also impressed.

We talked a bit more and we parted as friends.

Off to DC from Dulles:

After checking in at my Hotel I got right down to business on 9th and Pennsylvania on the median strip. Everyone started honking, putting their thumbs up, and a young couple, with striking features walk up to me.

"Brother Nathanael, is this you?" asked the young man in his late twenties excitedly. He answered his own question with, "Yes, it IS you! I have watched almost all of your Videos."

The young lady started nodding her head quietly and she was quite a looker, refined, and elegant.

The young man then said, "You know, I'm a Muslim...we're both Muslims, but more secularized than others." (The young lady was not wearing a Hajib.)

"Where are you from?" I asked. "Turkey," he answered. "I taught at university in Istanbul and we are now living here in DC in hopes of finding something in academia."

Then he said, "I would love to take a picture with you," and I said, "sure."

He immediately put his arm around me and his lady friend took a few pics.

What is kind of neat is that EVERY TIME I come to DC some Turks walk up to me excitedly and want to take pictures with me. Two of them once insisted they hold the Cross with me!

Ok. Now I go to Constitution Blvd and Pennsylvania on the median strip. People are waving from the cars, putting their thumbs up, and yelling out, "God Bless You!" Many called out, "Hey, it's Brother Nathanael, love your Videos!"

Then as the sun was setting, (it was quite beautiful), I started chanting our Orthodox Vespers hymn:

"Oh gladsome Light of the holy glory of the immortal, heavenly, holy, blessed Father, O Jesus Christ: now that we have come to the setting of the sun, and behold the evening light, praise Father, Son, and Holy Spirit: God. Meet it is for Thee at all times to be praised with gladsome voices, O Son of God, Giver of life, wherefore the world doth glorify Thee.”

As I kept on singing it while watching a very beautiful sunset, an Asian man in his early fifties came right up to me and bowed his head slightly in front of the Cross and I blessed him with the Cross. He told me he was from China on a visit to America.

He then asked what I was attempting to do and told him that I was confessing Our Lord God and Saviour Jesus Christ. He smiled and then asked, “do you live here? Do you do this every day here?” I told him I do it throughout the country on median strips like the one we were standing on together.

He then attempted to make the sign of the Cross over himself, (it was a bit off center, but it was a sincere attempt), bowed his head reverently (deeper this time)...looked at me intently and thanked me.

This is not the first time that I have had this experience with people from China. There seems to be a deep hunger for Christ, or perhaps, an attraction to the Cross, and they all to a man, make some kind of prayerful gesture in front of the Cross.

Well, I’m back at the hotel now and FEEL GREAT!

God Bless You All! (Day 2 Report Coming Tomorrow)

Street Evangelism Report

Day 2, September 7 2016

Washington DC

I started out today very early for morning rush hour.

Again, people were giving me the thumb’s up and waving to me enthusiastically. Many commuters know me, and many who walk to their jobs come up to me and say, “God bless you.”

One encounter was quite interesting.

I stand first on the median strip at 9th and Pennsylvania right smack in the middle of vehicle and pedestrian traffic. To my left stands the FBI building, which looks like a prison. It’s got to be one of the ugliest buildings in the world.

A very well dressed man in his mid 50’s crosses the street with a big smile on his face and walks right up to me. He first tells me he really likes what I’m doing, and asked me about my ministry. I told him a little about myself and he was quite friendly.

Then I asked him, “Where do you work?” He looked over at the building and said, “I work for the FBI.”

“Hmm,” I replied, “what’s going on with Hillary’s emails and everything else?” (He obviously was a high official and not a functionary,)

He was about to say something, then hesitated, and simply said, “That’s going to take a lot of prayer sir,” and quickly walked away.

I thought to myself, “Darn! He was about to let me in on something, but bit his tongue!”

Oh well, so much for not getting inside information.

At evening rush hour two singular events occurred.

First, a black man started screaming while I was holding the Cross and scaring everybody. I simply said, “God bless you” while making the sign of the Cross over him. He immediately became quiet and said in a calm voice, “Sir, Christ promised that He would never leave you or forsake you.” I answered, “Amen!” and the man remained calm and stopped screaming.

Then on Constitution Blvd and Pennsylvania on the median strip I stand on, a Capitol Police squad car stops beside me and the lead cop rolls down his window (there were other cops in the car) and asked me pointedly, “Are YOU okay, sir?”

What the cop was getting at, (and I’ve been through this before with cops who look for a reason to chase me away), was suggesting, or rather, affirming, that obviously I was not in my right mind, mentally disturbed, and liable not only to be thrown off the median strip, but after writing a “pink slip” on me, haul me away to a mental hospital for a 10 day incarceration.

This once happened to me on Wall Street and the cop was definitely about to write up the pink slip when I said, “Oh, I’ve got a ride waiting for me to take me to my lawyers,” and after he paused, I walked away.

Another time this happened to me was on a median strip in Denver on Speers and Colfax. The cop stopped, asked me, “are YOU okay,” and demanded that I count from 20 backwards. I rattled it off quickly, he got a radio call, and sped off.

Back to the DC Capitol Police cop. (Oh, by the way, there is every kind of cop imaginable in DC):

Capitol Police (they're bored to tears, for they cover Capitol Hill); Metro cops (they do the real work); Homeland Security cops; FBI cops; Secret Service cops; Transit cops; and Park police,, etc.

So, I replied to the Capitol Police cop who asked me pointedly, "Are YOU okay, sir?," answering him: "Of course I'm okay, and doing great actually, can't you tell?" With that he said, "Hmm...well, better stay safe," and I thanked him for his concern for my safety. He drove off, and perhaps, I made his day a bit more interesting than standing in front of Congress all day with nothing to do but stare at everyone.

God Bless You All! And stay tuned for tomorrow's Street Evangelism Report!

Israhell's nat'l anthem (they have one now) by R. J. Oppenheimer

O say! can you swindle by the frauds early lies

What so disgustingly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming

Whose fraud ripe dancing with stars thru the TV-land night

O'er the scamparts we watched were on Jew Tube still streaming

& the rockets red glare, the nukes bursting in air

Gave proof thru the night that the Jews were not there

O say does that inverted pyramid scheme of satan still wave

O'er the land of murderers and thieves & their radioactive graves

People need to be warned in order that they may protect themselves from how the corruption of morals by one group against another group, could be considered to be an intentional method for harming another group.

The reason one group might seek to corrupt the morals of another group, is the intention to make the other group to significantly increase it's errors in the obeying of God's righteousness laws, in such a manner that God will take an action to harm or weaken the other group.

Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor. 9 "All this I will give you," he said, "if you will bow down and worship me." (Matthew 4:1-11)

This Scripture explains the power of the Jews—not cleverness—but a reward for bowing down and serving Satan.

Furthermore did not Jesus tell us "by their fruits ye shall know them" (Matthew 7:16)

Well here are for the uninformed are just a FEW of the fruits of international Jewry

b) ECONOMIC: the banking and monetary system (= colossal swindles)

c) CULTURAL: Cultural Marxism & Hollywood (= weapons to destroy family, morality, culture and holiness)

d) MEDIA: M.S.M. (= False Narrative)

The explanation is simple. The curse of DEICIDE means that the Jew has swapped places from being chose of God (OT) to being chosen of Satan (NT) and his works bear this out. In fact none less than Jesus Christ himself twice described them as the "Synagogue of Satan" (Revelations 3-4)

So it seems to me that the Jew is born with a natural orientation towards evil. What to him is a sign of his cleverness is to the rest of humanity a sign of his evil. The Jew cannot see it any other way since he is blinded by true father –Satan.

He is also endowed with unusual power by his true Father which explains his success.

Whilst he remains a shopkeeper his true nature remains invisible. Once he rises to a position of power and authority the wicked Talmudic-Kabbalah spirit comes to the fore.

There are many Jews who may not fit this description but my suggestion is that they are not actually Jews—just like Christians who do evil are not actually Christians even if regular Church attenders.

Since this is a 100% spiritual problem there is only one solution—to turn to the light of Christ.

Churches that continue to worship Israel & the HOLOHOAX and follow Scofield's false interpretation of Scripture (the basis of Christian Zionism) will one day have to answer to God for molly-coddling the wicked and for leading people to a lost eternity.

This will be, in all likelihood, the epitaph on our failing nation's headstone:

"No Rothschild is English... No Baruch, Morgenthau, Cohen, Lehman, Warburg, Kuhn, Kahn, Schiff, Sieff or Solomon was ever born Anglo-Saxon. And it is for this filth that you fight. It is for this filth that you murdered your Empire. It is this filth that elects, selects, your politicians."

– Ezra Pound, March 15, 1942 radio broadcast

For in the mind of this "mutt" culture there is nothing, not family, not honor, not even our God is safe in the mindless quest to be - politically correct.

The Jews are smart. They know If they can break down the moral fabric of a Nation, most likely it could produce more Democrats.

Also if they, and they are, make people Sports and Hollywood lovers, that can get their minds off of what's happening.

They even have Sex in the News. Look at CNN news and see how the cameras always focus on the legs of female news hosts underneath the visible glass tables.

And all they have to do to get "nice" gentiles to do their dirty work is flash some cash.

The one item missing from your Street Evangelism is a donations bucket.

Just by having an empty coffee cup resting on the ground nearby should be enough to collect someone's loose change. For all of those enthusiastic people driving by or walking over to you, no one offers to get you lunch or bring back something for later? No one reaches into their wallet to help out financially?

The LORD is at work with you providing a regimental protection unit, that much is obvious.

Hopefully you will be able to stay in WashDC for awhile longer than planned. Try standing at

Yes, Carter the Trilat stooge made a few good points in his criticism of Israel's actions.

I visited the link.

Apparently they don't think very much at the American Thinker website. They credited Carter with writing The Israel Lobby and US Foreign Policy when that book was written by Walt and Mearsheimer.

Carter wrote Palestine: Peace Not Apartheid.

They called him a Jew-hater and said they're holding back on calling him an anti-Semite. But Carter spoke the truth in that quote they gave. And so to show no independence whatsoever, they use Ginsburg and Dershowitz to attack Carter for this.

Of course!

It is a no brainer. Didn't Satan offer Jesus all the kingdoms of the world in exchange for a little devil worship? How is that?

"And the devil said unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will I give it."

When Satan is locked up for a thousand years, we will have peace and righteousness will be allowed to flourish!!!

"And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand.

"And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season." @KathJuliane

On an earlier post you asked for the name of the castle in Scotland where George Soros, Bill Gates, the head of what was Blackwater, and Jacob Rothschild fly in by helicopter to meet:

It's called Corrou Estate and is 56,000 acres privately owned by a Jewish lady named Lady Elizabeth Rowsing.

My British Army contact tells me there is a safe house in the basement of the castle, and more recently, there seems to have been a glass (bullet proof?) and steel structure erected on the estate. The place is very difficult to approach because it is one of the wildest parts of Scotland and surrounded by miles of very open land, and almost no trees.

Is this the heart of the Evil Empire where the destruction of nations and the deaths of tens of thousands of innocent people are planned?
Maybe?

Its on the internet. Take a look.

On another note: Alot of high ranking British officers who have good reason to fear for their lives, and alot of Russian Jewish Oligarchs are now using Gurkas as bodyguards.

@Ted Gorsline

Thanks!

What an ugly structure the Corrou Estate Lodge is. When I saw it, my first thought was, "It's really, really ugly," and the second was, "OMG, a Jew had to have designed it".

I was right.

The Lodge was designed by a famous Jewish architect, Moshe Safdie. It's Scottish castle given an avant Jew Kabbalistic twist, complete with a central glass pyramid as part of the structure.

I also found blueprint elevations on another site which show a basement level.

The current structure is a replacement building for the Victoria era castle which burned down in the '40s.

I'll work it up to see what I can unearth, and leave a reply on the previous RJN page — Confessions of a Frequent Flyer.

Ghurka bodyguards aren't all that new.

They started out as a fad for the rich and famous shortly after Hong Kong was returned by Britain to China in 1997, and some of the Hong Kong wealthy family members started getting kidnapped.

As I dimly recall, the Hong Kong Gurka units of the British Army were decommissioned. Some ex-military immigrated to the UK, but some remained in HK and the elites began to hire them as bodyguards.

I believe there are a dozen or so Gurka units of the British Army with active recruitment coming from Nepal every year, after their own selection process narrows down candidates to about 200.

Now private Gurka bodyguard and security companies have operations in various places, specializing in personal protection and security rather than just being ex-military.

Ghurka bodyguards have been hired by the elites in the Gulf states, and they started to become a fad status symbol in Hollywood about 10 years ago.

It was not my intention to imply that Brother Nathanael acts as a street beggar.

Every ministry I have ever encountered avails itself to donations. It has nothing to do with begging. There is always a tray or box or something with which collect donations, it's not a matter of actively seeking spare change.

What surprises me about this trip to WDC is how much enthusiasm is demonstrated toward Brother Nathanael, and yet no one offers to pony up anything more than a smile, a wave or a pat on his back.

"Constructive Chaos Proudly Made in USA"

SAMA.tv: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0TBPq45ZM18>

Global Research: Plans for Redrawing the Middle East: The Project for a "New Middle East" (2006; 2016)

The term "New Middle East" was introduced to the world in June 2006 in Tel Aviv by U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice (who was credited by the Western media for coining the term) in replacement of the older and more imposing term, the "Greater Middle East."

This shift in foreign policy phraseology coincided with the inauguration of the Baku-Tbilisi-Ceyhan (BTC) Oil Terminal in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The term and conceptualization of the "New Middle East," was subsequently heralded by the U.S. Secretary of State and the Israeli Prime Minister at the height of the Anglo-American sponsored Israeli siege of Lebanon.

Prime Minister Olmert and Secretary Rice had informed the international media that a project for a "New Middle East" was being launched from Lebanon.

This announcement was a confirmation of an Anglo-American-Israeli "military roadmap" in the Middle East.

This project, which has been in the planning stages for several years, consists in creating an arc of instability, chaos, and violence extending from Lebanon, Palestine, and Syria to Iraq, the Persian Gulf, Iran, and the borders of NATO-garrisoned Afghanistan.

( globalresearch.ca/plans-for-redrawing-the-middle-east-the-project-for-a-new-middle-east/3882 )

Condi Rice pre-announced the "New Middle East" strategy at AIPAC in 2005 dedicated to spreading freedom and democracy at the point of a gun. Clinton sounds very much like Rice. ( youtube.com/watch?v=-sE8xivjkIY )

Silence, Please! A New Middle East Is in the Making (2015)

When, in June 2006, former US National Security adviser and, later on, Secretary of State, Condoleezza Rice, spelled out the George W. Bush administration new, magic doctrine for the Middle East, tons of ink was poured and millions of words said in a harsh attempt to speculate with what she really did mean by what she called "Creative Chaos."

Most Middle East analysts concluded then that the new doctrine would lead to or build upon a new wave of conflicts and violence in the region.

Whether they were right or not, this is at least what has been happening. No Need to recall what is now going on in Iraq, Syria, Yemen, Libya and even Tunisia and Egypt--the so-called "Arab Spring" countries.

Now another U.S. neo-liberal, neo-conservative Republican "hawk," John R. Bolton, has just come out with a new vision that might explain the rationale behind that "Creative Chaos" doctrine.

"Create a New State"

In his recent article in the New York Times, published on 25 November 2015 under the eloquent header "To Defeat ISIS, Create a Sunni State" this scholar at the American Enterprise Institute, and former US ambassador to the United Nations (August 2005 to December 2006), poses this question: "What comes after the Islamic State?"

Bolton then explains that "Before transforming Mr. Obama's ineffective efforts into a vigorous military campaign to destroy the Islamic State, we need a clear view, shared with NATO allies and others, about what will replace it. It is critical to resolve this issue before considering any operational plans..."

Iraq and Syria Are Gone!

According to Bolton -who could hold a key post in the US coming administration should a Republican like Donald Trump be elected- "Today's reality is that Iraq and Syria as we have known them are gone..."

He then says that defeating the Islamic State means restoring to power President Bashar Assad in Syria and Iran's puppets in Iraq, and "that outcome is neither feasible nor desirable... Rather than striving to recreate the post-World War I map, Washington should recognize the new geopolitics."

"The best alternative to the Islamic State in northeastern Syria and western Iraq is a new, independent Sunni state."

An Oil Producer "Sunni-stan"

Bolton explains further: This "Sunni-stan" has economic potential as an oil producer (subject to negotiation with the [mostly Sunni-Kj] Kurds, to be sure), and could be a bulwark against both Mr. Assad and Iran-allied Baghdad.

The rulers of the Arab Gulf states, who should by now have learned the risk to their own security of funding Islamist extremism, could provide significant financing. And Turkey — still a NATO ally, don't forget — would enjoy greater stability on its southern border, making the existence of a new state at least tolerable."

He believes that the Arab monarchies like Saudi Arabia "must not only fund much of the new state's early needs, but also ensure its stability and resistance to radical forces. Once, we might have declared a Jordanian "protectorate" in an American "sphere of influence" for now, a new state will do."

Bolton's visionary plan for the new Middle East would then explain what has been behind the "Creative Chaos" doctrine.

And it would clearly revamp the nearly 100-year-old Sykes-Picot map (link to Middle East Part II – 99.5 Years of (Imposed) Solitude <http://www.ipsnews.net/2015/12/middle-east-part-ii-99-5-years-of-imposed-solitude/>.

Such vision would be just another step on the successive US-West roadmaps for the region.

In fact, in addition to the "Creative Chaos" doctrine, the George W. Bush second term administration came out with a new name for the region: the "Greater Middle East," which would include Pakistan, Afghanistan, Turkey, Cyprus, Somalia, and eventually also Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan.

The Middle East Is "Served," the "Creative Chaos" Has Worked

The "Creative Chaos" has turned to be a reality. The whole region has been boiling specially over the last five years.

Violence, death and terrorism have been rapidly growing everywhere: Iraq, Libya, Syria, Yemen, Sudan, even in Tunisia. Tensions between Arabian Peninsula kingdoms and principalities and Iran, all of them oil producers, have been ramping.

Mercenary groups, under a more than doubtful religious flag have been gradually dominating the region and tragically though sporadically also some Western countries.

In short, the scenario could not be more "chaotic". The new Middle East has been served.

The Doors of Hell Are All Open

Though Bolton's vision should not be taken for "biblical," things could well go in that direction.

For now, (Shii-ruled) Iraq has warned (Sunni) Turkey against deploying its troops in the DAESH-controlled Mosul area; Washington paves the ground for further military actions in conjunction with the axis Paris-London; (Sunni Wahhabi Saudi Arabia works intensively with (Sunni) Egypt for setting up a joint Army/military intervention force to fight terrorism, and (Shii) Iran warns that any attempt to remove Assad in (Alaui) Syria is a "red line," etc.

One last question, for now: where would DAESH go once it has been militarily defeated? Libya would appear to be the next DAESH stronghold.

After all, this country lacks stability, is full of weapons (up to 25 million arms) out of the government's control, it is a big oil producer, and DAESH has an active operational branch there.

And, should this be the case, would DAESH further expand its deadly operations from Libya to neighbouring countries like Egypt, Tunisia and Morocco, in addition to some Africans countries in conjunction with Nigerian Boko-Haram?

(End)

<http://www.ipsnews.net/>

Trump has surrounded himself with neocon war hawk advisors. One of his biggest “go to guys,” according to Trump, is the most hawkish of all the neocon hawks, John Bolton.

Trump decries the 2003 Iraq invasion (after he was initially for it and then changed his mind several months after), but embraces one of its chief architects, John Bolton, former US ambassador to the UN during the Bush43 White House who lied our way into invading Iraq.

Bolton backs Trump 100%, and said he would be ‘honored’ to be Trump’s Secretary of State.

He was part of the Bush-Cheney crew that claimed Saddam Hussein had amassed weapons of mass destruction and that war was the only option.

As a top State Department official prior to the 2003 Iraq invasion, Bolton pushed the false claims that Iraq had obtained aluminum tubes and uranium for its supposed nuclear weapons program.

Asked about suggestions he name John Bolton secretary of state and Jim Talent secretary of defense, Donald Trump tells interviewer Hugh Hewitt, “I’ve always liked John Bolton. Well, we are thinking about it, Hugh. I will say that. We are thinking about it,” according to transcript posted by radio program.

<http://www.hughhewitt.com/donald-trump-makes-return-visit/>

The players change, strategy and tactics are altered depending on conditions, but the “New Middle East” script hasn’t changed in 25 years.

Another of Trump’s advisors is Walid Phares, a naturalized Lebanese Maronite Catholic, now a neocon “terror expert” with close ties to Israel.

Phares was a major player and ideologue in the Lebanese Forces, one of the Christian militias that fought in Lebanon’s brutal 15-year civil war. Phares helped the group’s leader, Samir Geagea, steep its fighters in religious ideology.

The Israel-allied Lebanese Forces was responsible for one of the war’s most notorious incidents, the massacre of hundreds of Palestinians in Lebanon’s Sabra and Shatila refugee camps in 1982.

Beirut Syndrome: Donald Trump, Hillary Clinton, and Lebanese Advisory

Who knew that such a small country like Lebanon could be involved (one way or another) in the upcoming presidential elections in the United States?

Both Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump have Lebanese-Americans who were active in the civil war as advisers.

Both were involved with the Lebanese Forces, a right-wing Christian militia (now a political party) that at one point during the civil war cooperated with the occupying forces of Israel and was involved in the massacre of the Sabra and Shatilla refugee camp in 1982.

The UN General Assembly called the massacre an act of genocide.

Peter Daou

Having consulted US Secretary of State John Kerry and former Senator Arlen Specter, and being a consultant to the Clinton Global Initiative, it’s no surprise that Hillary Clinton appointed Peter Daou to be her foreign policy adviser.

Though much of his views on domestic policy fall in line with general Democratic party policy, be it gun control or supporting religious freedom on ground zero, what’s rather frightening is his common references to his experience with the Lebanese Forces militia, especially on Twitter, when trying to make a point.

Oddly enough, in an article Daou co-wrote with Tom Watson on #HillaryMen towards the sexist comments towards him and other men who campaign for Clinton, he mentions that Daou was conscripted for three years at age 15 for military training with the Lebanese Forces, but he “never hurt a soul.”

If that was the case, why does Daou constantly mention that he fought during the civil war, and why did the article have to mention that all sides of the civil committed disgusting war crimes? We’re not sure either.

Walid Phares

Walid Phares’ appointment as Donald Trump’s foreign adviser has received many headlines in the United States, given that he was also Mitt Romney’s foreign adviser back in his 2012 campaign.

Phares has a pretty good reputation among the Republicans and conservative media in the United States, often appearing on Fox as a terrorism expert, though he did the same for NBC before.

Like Peter Daou, Walid Phares too was active in the civil war with the Lebanese Forces, albeit off the front-lines.

According to Regina Sneifer, a Lebanese woman now in France who served with the Lebanese Forces at just 18, Phares was a key ideologist for the party.

In her book where she talks about her experience as a fighter in the civil war, she mentions that Phares promoted the ‘clashes of civilizations’ narrative to Christian militiamen, emphasizing that they were the “vanguard of a war between the West and Islam.”

Despite never firing a bullet, Phares’ speeches and ideology played a huge role in influencing the Christian Right in Lebanon for their sect-based indiscriminate attacks.

After a recent piece on Mother Jones was published about his appointment, Walid Phares was quick to respond on Twitter, accusing the “Iran deal supporter” website of lies and slanders, promising to provide a response to the “mother of lies.”

Suppose Phares is right. Suppose the article on Mother Jones and Regina Sneifer’s memoir are wrong. Suppose we can only look at Walid Phares’ character purely on his published material.

In 1999, Walid Phares published “Israel’s Alternative Policy in Lebanon”, a policy paper for Israeli think tank, the Ariel Center for Policy Research, one year before Israeli occupation forces withdrew from Southern Lebanon.

The piece entirely appeals to Israel’s military and political actions in Lebanon during the civil war, and believes that poor decisions from the Christian Right in Lebanon failed to create an ally state to Israel in Lebanon.

He proposes that occupied Southern Lebanon becomes a state of its own, a “Christian enclave”, that will thrive as Israel’s ally and bring back many of Lebanese Christian expats.

It’s ideal given that the occupied territory is also the hub of the South Lebanon Army, a pro-Israel militia that cooperated with Israeli occupying forces.

He called on having the South Lebanon Army become the new country’s official military as well.

In his 17-paged policy paper, he shares both the ideological and logistical aspects of this idea. It can be read here.

<http://www.acpr.org.il/pp/pp078-pharesE.pdf>

Remnants of the Lebanese Civil War

Why isn’t this being discussed among people in Lebanon, nor the Lebanese diaspora?

The Lebanese Civil War officially ended in 1990, but many of its elements and ideas unfortunately live on, both inside and outside of Lebanon.

There is interest among Lebanese people to talk about big shots in the diaspora, so why aren’t we talking about Walid Phares and Peter Daou? After all, the general public really cares about Lebanon’s reputation (whatever that means).

<http://www.acpr.org.il/pp/pp078-pharesE.pdf>

The “Christian state” that Phares envisions in southern Lebanon, is also Hezbollah’s political region.

Hezbollah - the Party of God - is a national-oriented Islamic Shia political, military and social organisation that wields considerable power in Lebanon. The armed wing is the Jihad Council.

It emerged with the help of Iran during the brutal Israeli occupation of Lebanon in the early 1980s, though its ideological roots stretch back to the Shia Islamic revival in Lebanon in the 1960s and ’70s.

When Israeli forces finally withdrew in 2000, Hezbollah was credited with pushing them out.

After the Israeli occupation withdrawal, Hezbollah resisted pressure to disarm and continued to strengthen its defensive capabilities and paramilitary wing, the Jihad Council, against future Israeli operations and incursions into southern Lebanon.

In some ways, its capabilities now exceed those of the Lebanese army, its considerable firepower was used against Israel in the IDF’s invasive 2006 war, and kicked Jewish rears all the way back to Tel Aviv.

Because they are primarily a Lebanese defensive paramilitary against any future Israeli attacks, and part of the Axis of Resistance.

Hezbollah’s 1985 manifesto listed its objectives as the expulsion of “the Americans, the French and their allies definitely from Lebanon, putting an end to any colonialist entity on our land,” submission of the Phalangists to “just power” and bringing them to justice “for the crimes they have perpetrated against Muslims and Christians,” and permitting “all the sons of our people” to choose the form of government they want, while calling on them to “pick the option of Islamic government.”

Naturally, Hezbollah is deemed a “terrorist” organization.

As the war in Syria escalated, thousands of Hezbollah militiamen went to fight for President al-Assad, proving decisive in helping pro-government forces recover ground lost to “rebels”, particularly along the Lebanese border.

Zionist Jews originally coveted southern Lebanon up to the Litani River when their movement began in the late 19th century. Ben Gurion never gave up hope of absorbing southern Lebanon, nor has Bibsy and the Likudniks.

They have not given up their aspirations for either outright theft of the land, or else reestablish a hegemonic presence in southern Lebanon.

The Maronite-Zionist relationship in its earliest incarnation dates back to the late 1800’s, spanning close to 125 years.

From the start of the Zionist movement, Maronite Christians, united with the Pope of Rome since the 12th century and a part of the Frankish Crusader states, under France's 19th century tutelage and sponsorship, considered themselves a European entity in the Middle East.

Within the Lebanese Maronite community there were those who were pro-Zionist and isolationist, and those who were anti-Zionist and integrationist.

"Zionists and Maronites alike aspired to, and eventually won, secession from Greater Syria.

The former sought self-determination in a renascent Jewish homeland in Palestine, and the latter sought to preserve their primacy in the Mutasarrifiya in a territory twice its size.

With initial success, Zionists and Maronites were able to marshal the support of the Great Powers in the service of these ambitions.

Britain issued the Balfour Declaration, and France created Grand Liban."
<https://bir.brandeis.edu/bitstream/handle/10192/29/ThePromiseandFailureoftheZionist-MaroniteRelationship,1920-1948.pdf>

About 10,000 Maronites live in Israel, most loyal to the Jewish state. Some serve in the IOF, even elite units, and now encourage Christian Israelis to enlist.

Maronites have been in Palestine since the 18th century, largely based in the Galilee. Now Maronite Israelis, their population increased significantly after the May 2000 withdrawal of IDF from southern Lebanon.

Throughout the 1990s there were two Lebanese militias that remained armed and active, even though the Lebanese civil war had ended in 1990.

One was the Hezbollah movement, which still operates to this day. The other was the South Lebanon Army (SLA), a militia that was armed, trained and financed by Israel.

The SLA, along with Israeli troops, controlled what they called the 'security zone' in south Lebanon which ranged from 8km to 20km deep inside Lebanese territory.

It was established in 1985 following the evacuation of Israeli troops from parts of south Lebanon, which Israel had occupied since 1978 when it first invaded the country to strike at the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO).

Back in 1978, Israel's target in south Lebanon had been Palestinian fighters.

But by the time the 'security zone' was set up, the biggest threat to Israel came from Lebanon's Shia.

By 1993 this region was the theater for an ongoing armed operation carried out by Hezbollah against foreign occupation and local collaboration.

The fighters attacked the Israeli and SLA positions in the 'security zone'.

Their main aim was to end the Israeli occupation of southern Lebanon and each year they killed dozens of Israeli soldiers.

The SLA were pejoratively described by most Lebanese as the 'sand bags of Israel' - they manned the zone's most dangerous and exposed outposts and suffered far higher losses than the Israelis over the years.

The SLA also ran the notorious al-Khiam prison, where hundreds of Lebanese prisoners were held in terrible conditions, mostly without charge or trial.

In 1999, Ehud Barak was elected prime minister in Israel. He had run on a campaign promise to withdraw Israeli troops from south Lebanon. The following year, he carried out his promise.

Israel's withdrawal in May 2000 was swift and sudden, catching the SLA by surprise.

Left exposed, several thousands of former SLA militia members and their families, mostly Lebanese Maronites, fled from South Lebanon to the Galilee during April-May 2000.

The bloodbath that many feared would follow an Israeli withdrawal never materialized, and the Lebanese government offered amnesty conditions.

Hezbollah ordered its fighters and supporters not to engage in any revenge attacks.

Many SLA officers and their families fled to Israel. Those who remained were arrested and handed over to the Lebanese state. Most were imprisoned and, over time, released.

While many of them later immigrated to France, Canada, the US, and South America, the majority of the SLA Maronites remained, joining the existing Maronite communities of Galilee and establishing new ones, most notably in near the Lebanon border.

Maronite Israelis reside in the border cities of:

-Nahariya, (the northernmost coastal city in Israel);

-Safed (northern Galilee, considered one of Judaism's Four Holy Cities and the center of Kabbalah mysticism); and

-Kiryat-Shemona (established in 1949 on the site of the ethnically cleansed Arab-Palestinian village Al-Khalisa, whose inhabitants fled the village, after Safed was taken by the Haganah during the 1948 Arab-Israeli War and an attempt by the village to come to an agreement with the Jewish authorities was rejected).

Al Ahed News:

A group of journalists from a number of Lebanese media outlets spoke with the deputy secretary-general of the Lebanese resistance movement Hezbollah, Sheikh Naim Qassem.

During the interview, Sheikh Qassem touched on Lebanon's domestic political scene, which continues to be crippled by a presidential vacuum. He also addressed the latest developments in neighboring Syria.

The interview began with Sheikh Qassem's overview of Hezbollah's position dating back to the start of the Syrian conflict. He explained that the resistance movement believed that there was a conspiracy being plotted against Syria, with the aim of changing the pro-resistance government and replacing it with a regime willing to coexist with "Israel".

According to the Hezbollah deputy, some looked upon the events unfolding in Syria, as reforms within the country.

"We find that more than eighty countries sent their fighter to Syria while others provided all the necessary military facilities including arming, equipping, and training troops. So armies from all over the world converged on Syria under the banner of reform. The world has never witnessed this kind and pattern of targeting," Sheikh Qassem said during the interview.

He added that Hezbollah's entry into the fight was "two years late," and came only when the resistance group sensed the danger coming towards the Lebanese border.

According to Sheikh Qassem, attempts to target the resistance through the Syrian crisis followed the failure of the "New Middle East" project - first revealed by former US Secretary of State, Condoleezza Rice, during the "Israeli" war against Lebanon in July 2006.

When asked about the magnitude of the sacrifices made by Hezbollah, His Eminence warned that the movement was willing to pay an even higher price. He said that despite the thus far tragic losses, Hezbollah was prepared for even bigger sacrifices if the Takfiris tried to capture Qalamoun or any other area in the hope of declaring their so-called emirate.

Sheikh Qassem praised the efforts of the Lebanese security forces and the country's General Security agency, in maintaining the safety of citizens. He said that with the help of the resistance, security services are conducting thorough follow-ups on terrorist networks, individuals, and sleeper cells.

With respect to the Lebanese dossier, Sheikh Qassem described "General Michel Aoun" - Hezbollah's presidential candidate - as the "worthiest" for many reasons. He pointed out Aoun's clearly stated positions, an anti-corruption project as well as the support he enjoys among Lebanon's Christian community.

http://www.english.alahednews.com.lb/essaydetails.php?eid=34798&cid=269#.V9Hvt\_krKM9

Hezbollah's support for Syria's President Assad, and alliance with Iran has seen a deepening of hostility from Gulf Arab states, led by Iran's main regional rival, Saudi Arabia. In turn, the Saudis, who loaned Lebanon money to rebuild Lebanon after 2006, put pressure on Lebanon's government and politicians.

The Maronites in Lebanon are divided, mostly anti-Zionist with a pro-Zionist minority. One area might support March 14 and the Phalanges, but just down the road the support is generally given to Aoun's Free Patriotic Movement, a more or less Christian party with a minority of Shia Muslims allied to Hezbollah in the parliament.

The Free Patriotic Movement (FPM) is the second largest party in Lebanon's parliament (after the Future Movement) and the largest party in the Christian political bloc. It has 20 out of the 128 seats in parliament (of which 64 seats represent Christians).

Today, more than half of the Maronite vote goes to Aoun, who is allied to Hezbollah. What will happen in Lebanese elections is often up in the air, as the Christian vote is deeply divided. But this says something about the political landscape — people are free to vote for whomever they choose.

Hezbollah is seen by many as a viable option to be what's best for Lebanon, and are not, by any means, considered "terrorists" inside Lebanon, nor perceived as wanting to dominate Lebanon.

In the meantime, Israel is publicly huffing and puffing making belligerent noises about the IDF being far more prepared, equipped, and ready for a confrontation with Hezbollah in a second go round after the Jews were defeated in 2006 in their invasion of southern Lebanon.

Hezbollah is moving into Syria to assist al Assad on a reportedly large operation near the Israeli border and the Occupied Golan Heights.

In response, Seyyed Hassan Nasrallah, the secretary general of Hezbollah, says the Lebanese resistance movement will defeat Israel in any potential new military confrontation waged by the Tel Aviv regime.

"The [2006] war was aimed at eliminating the resistance in Lebanon, Syria and Palestine, and eventually isolating Iran. What is happening in Syria is a form of revenge for that war," he said, referring to the foreign-backed militancy against the government of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad.

"The Israelis knew that a direct military confrontation would not lead to Hezbollah's defeat and that a war with Iran was not helpful. That is why they chose to take out Syria from the axis of resistance," Nasrallah said.

He said some parties in Lebanon "tried to confine the Lebanese army" during the 2006 war.

Nasrallah reiterated Hezbollah's commitment to Lebanon's national unity and the formation of a government that included all Lebanese political parties and factions, including the Future Movement.

The womanoid feminist war hawk Hildebeast is fairly easy to figure out, she is prepared from day 1 to be the War President, taking the fight all the way to Moscow, at least in her own mind.

Trump is not so easy to track, but his choice of neocon hawk running mate and foreign policy advisors also tell a similar story of Middle East intervention, especially into Syria and confronting Iran. It's just that Trump probably has much the same goals, but will go about it a little differently.

As for Israel, it seems to be waiting out the lame duck presidency, and perhaps not much will happen until after Inauguration Day. This is what we can expect regardless of who wins:

If Clinton wins, it's good for the Jews.

If Trump wins, it's good for the Jews.

It's a good idea if Brother Nathanael helps Australia but have you considered he is doing that already?

If +BN saves the USA then Australia and the rest of the world has little to worry about. I'm Australian and that's why I help +BN in any way I can.

Also, I had a quick look at the link you provided and not really knowing about Carr and Gillard, I am not surprised that Gillard was controlled by the Jewish Lobby. The same goes for Malcolm Turnbull and the whole of the Australian Government.

I did not look at the whole Corrou website, but noticed there were no prices nor lists of activities, so what are they selling?

An estate that size costs a fortune to maintain. The owner must be worth at least 400 million pounds.

In addition, its right in the heart of the Scottish red deer stalking area so it would be an easy thing to legally plant people with long range high power rifles and telescopes all over the hill tops.

Hard to move around that vast open area without being seen. Just put some guys on the hill wearing deer stalker outfits and Sherlock Holmes hats and it would all appear as innocent can be. Why lady Chatterly's lover may be living in a stone cottage somewhere on the estate.

If you disagree with so-called "gay marriage" expect to hear many, or all, of these:

You aren't very bright
You're "homophobic"
You're a bigot
You're a hater!
You're very angry

There's nothing wrong about being gay - but I'm not gay! How dare you call me gay, you ignorant, intolerant asshole!
You're paranoid
You're a bad person
You have no heart
You can't get laid

You have no friends
You're just a sad and lonely person
You aren't normal
You're giving off gay vibes
You're a closeted gay

You're a self-hating gay
You're a gay in denial
You shouldn't be allowed to reproduce
You shouldn't be allowed near children
Your kind belongs in prison

You are uneducated
You live in a trailer and wear a tin foil hat
You are immature
What's your address? I'm coming over to kick your ass!

You project your own insecurities on to others

How's the weather there in Mississippi?

You are a dinosaur

Hello! Welcome to the 21st Century!

You are scapegoating a whole group of people for your own inadequacies

There is NO "gay agenda" in public schools. None!

You are insecure in your identity

You have serious mental issues

You need psychological help - from a gay psychologist

You don't love people like Christ said

You are not showing love like a true Christian

Most pederasts are straight!

Your statistics are all wrong

I'm a Christian and I support gay marriage

And, last but not least, "BTW, I'm not gay...." LOL!

Campaign 2016 updates: Hillary Clinton calls Donald Trump's praise of Putin 'unseemly'

It may not have been the choicest of venues for Donald Trump, as he disputes the charge that he is being played by Russian President Vladimir Putin.

But there he was Thursday, being interviewed on Russia Today, the network funded by the Kremlin. Trump's campaign said it was all a big mistake.

The interviewer was Larry King, whom Trump has known for years. Campaign officials said the candidate's understanding was that the interview would be used only for King's podcast.

Some were skeptical of that explanation.

Trump took the opportunity while being interviewed for Putin's network to say he does not believe Putin is interfering in the American election.

"I think it's probably unlikely," Trump said of findings by investigators that hackers working for Putin stole files from the servers of the Democratic National Committee and distributed them to Wikileaks.

Trump's defense of the Russian president that puts him at odds with other high-profile Republicans, as well as cybersecurity experts who have said the evidence overwhelmingly points to Russia being responsible for the hack.

"Maybe the Democrats are putting that out — who knows," Trump said in the interview with King. "If they are doing something, I hope that somebody's going to be able to find out so they can end it. Because that would not be appropriate at all."

A spokeswoman for King's production company, Ora Media, said in an email that the program was produced independently, but that Russia Today is among the companies permitted to broadcast it through a licensing agreement.

4:55 p.m.: This post was updated with background on Ora Media's licensing agreement.

From Russian TV Network, Not So Much Love for Donald Trump

Zaid Jilani

Sep. 9 2016, 12:51 p.m.

DONALD TRUMP'S INTERVIEW with Larry King on the Russian-government-funded television network RT America is being widely seen in the mainstream U.S. media as evidence of unseemly coziness between Trump and authoritarian Russian leader Vladimir Putin.

The interview came after months of claims by Democratic Party officials and news media pundits that the Russian government is trying to get Trump elected.

RT America has a long history of coverage that benefits the Russian government and is critical of the United States, as many former employees have complained.

But there's one problem with the theory that RT America and the Russian government are fond of Trump: RT America is sometimes more critical of Trump than U.S. media.

The interview with King itself was far from a softball event — with the host pressing Trump on topics from releasing his tax returns to his utter lack of any strategy in the Middle East. And it's not uncommon to see criticism of Trump on the network.

Host Lee Camp has called Trump a "mediocre wizard who can magically turn unemployment into racism."

Clinton Blasts Trump For Appearing On Russian TV, Praising Putin

U.S. Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton blasted her rival Donald Trump for appearing on a Russian state-run television network and praising Russian President Vladimir Putin.

Clinton, campaigning in New York on September 9, said the Republican candidate's appearance on RT America on September 8, one day after he praised Putin for being a better leader than U.S. President Barack Obama, demonstrates that he is not fit to fill the highest office in the nation.

"Every day that goes by, this just becomes more and more of a reality television show," Clinton said. "It's not a serious presidential campaign, and it is beyond one's imagination to have a candidate for president praising a Russian autocrat like Vladimir Putin."

Critics say the RT network, which carries programs in both Russian and English, is a propaganda arm of Putin's government.

Trump told the network he did not think Russia's government was behind the hack of Democratic party e-mails this year, and he doubted Moscow is trying to interfere in the U.S. election, though cyber experts have traced the e-mail hack to Russia.

Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) is a United States government-funded broadcasting organization that provides news, information, and analysis to countries in Eastern Europe, Central Asia and the Middle East "where the free flow of information is either banned by government authorities or not fully developed".

RFE/RL is a 501(c)(3) corporation that receives U.S. government funding and is supervised by the Broadcasting Board of Governors, an agency overseeing all U.S. federal government international broadcasting services.

RFE/RL can never, ever, be accused of being the propaganda arm of the US government and the CIA.

It is, but you just can't accuse them of it.

When Hillary plopped her ample rear in the seat of US Senator from Jew York for 8 years before her appointment as Obama's Secretary of State, she approved US taxpayer funding for this privatized Cold War CIA/Mossad front Beacon of Blabberty and Freedomanddemocracy.

Full disclosure: I can say that Hillary has an ample rear, because I have an ample rear myself. On the same hand, my ample rear is nothing that you could perch an aircraft carrier on.

Note to Hildebeast: Hate to say it, but you are an integral and equally ridiculous component of the campaign "reality television show" this election cycle.

What gives me the creeps about Hillery Clinton are the strange facial gestures videotaped on the internet she makes in front of crowds. Doctors are trying to brush it off as some kind of nervous tic such as Parkinson's but I do wonder if she's demonically possessed.

It's been reported that she attends creepy rituals held at Bohemian Grove above San Francisco in which attendees make either mock or living sacrifices to a giant concrete owl!

Has she ever spoken the name of Jesus or claimed to be a Christian or was she ever spotted entering a church? At least Trump claims to be a Presbyterian who collects old Bibles.

SANA: The Israeli enemy intervenes directly to support terrorists, Syrian Army thwarts terrorist attack in Quneitra

September 10

Quneitra, SANA- As part of the Israeli enemy's support for the terrorist organizations which have been waging a violent attack in the area of al-Amal Farms in Quneitra countryside, an Israeli aircrafts targeted a position in Tal al-Shaar area on Saturday.

A military source told SANA that Army and Armed Forces units, in cooperation with popular defense groups, thwarted a massive attack carried out by terrorist groups affiliated to Jabhat al-Nusra on a number of military points and positions in the direction of Hadar-Mashati Hadar -Tal Ahmar in Quneitra countryside.

The source also said that the Israeli enemy's air force assisted the attack by Jabhat al-Nusra and other terrorist groups by attacking a position in Quneitra countryside and by facilitating the movement of terrorists and their weapons and equipment within occupied territory.

The source added that the clashes between the army and the terrorists are still ongoing, noting that army units and the popular defense groups inflicted heavy losses in personnel and munitions upon terrorists.

Earlier on Saturday afternoon, SANA reporter said that an Israeli drone fired a rocket on a position in Tal al-Shaar area to the east of Juba village in Quneitra countryside, causing material damage.

The reporter had said that army units in cooperation with popular defense groups clashed with terrorists, most of whom from Jabhat al-Nusra, who attacked military posts in al-Amal farms and al-Hamriyeh areas to the south of Hadar town in the northern countryside of Quneitra, and that the attack was foiled after inflicting heavy losses in munitions and killing a number of terrorists including leaders.

The aforementioned terrorist attack coincided with firing tens of artillery shells on locals' houses in Harfa village in the northern countryside of Quneitra, causing material damage to properties.

<http://sana.sy/en/?p=87811>

What is Quneitra?

Wiki notes: Quneitra, is situated in a high valley in the Golan Heights, and is the capital of the Quneitra Governorate, a district of southwestern Syria that incorporates the whole of the Golan Heights.

[In other words, Israel is squatting on Syrian territory and has been for decades, and is deeply engaged in aggressive state-backed illegal settler paramilitary colonization and expansion as they are in the West Bank.

[The Jews, their goyish sycophants, and the Jewmedia quite studiously avoid mentioning the fact that they occupy part of an integral organized and political Syrian provincial territory internationally recognized as a part of Syrian sovereign territory — Quneitra Governate — by always referring it by the regional name of the Golan Heights.

It's the same rhetorical tactic that they use when they call the West Bank "Judea and Samaria," as if the Golan Heights area were some kind of unclaimed territorial orphan. Same immoral tactic as mass murdering and terrorizing Palestinians to ethnically cleanse them out of their towns and villages, and then the Jews innocently claim they took over the abandoned sites.]

Quneitra Governate is province of the Syrian Arab Republic, the borders of which were recognized internationally in 1948.

The Green Line or (pre-)1967 border or 1949 Armistice border is the demarcation line set out in the 1949 Armistice Agreements between the armies of Israel and those of its neighbors (Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria) after the 1948 Arab-Israeli War.

It was the de facto borders of the State of Israel from 1949 until the Six-Day War in 1967.

The Green Line refers to the demarcation lines, rather than permanent borders, between Israeli forces and those of its neighbours.

All movement across the demarcation lines was banned and monitored by the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO).

Most commonly, the term was applied to the boundary between Jordan-controlled Jerusalem and the West Bank and Israel. The drawing of the Green Line superseded entirely the partition lines proposed and voted on by the United Nations in the Partition Plan of 1947 and which Israel had accepted in the Israeli Declaration of Independence.

The Palestinian and Arab leaders had repeatedly rejected any permanent partition of Mandate Palestine.

In 1967, after Israel seized all the territories of the former Mandate Palestine, as well as other territories, the demarcation lines became militarily irrelevant, and the status of the Green Line became uncertain.

Although Israel [typically speaking out both sides of the mouth] has always formally argued that the Green Line has no legal significance, the Green Line continued to have political, legal and administrative significance, as the territories beyond the Green Line, unlike those within the Green Line, were regarded in Israel as occupied territories, and not incorporated into Israeli political and civilian administrative systems.

The territories beyond the Green Line were administered by the Israeli military or later also by the Palestinian Authority. Citizenship by residence, for example, was determined with reference to the Green Line, as well as a person's refugee status.

The extension of the municipality boundary of Jerusalem in 1980 was an exception to this position. Although Jerusalem was a part of territory beyond the Green Line that was occupied by Jordan until 1967, Israel declared Jerusalem "complete and united" as the capital of Israel according to the 1980 Basic Jerusalem Law, an action that has not been recognised by any country or by the UN Security Council. A notional Green Line continues to divide Jerusalem at the boundary of East Jerusalem.

[As another example of Jewish double-mindedness]—The Golan Heights are another exception, having been informally incorporated with the Israeli 1981 Golan Heights Law, which the UN Security Council announced as null and without any international legal effect.

Israeli settlements are also essentially subject to the laws of Israel rather than the Palestinian Authority's laws.

Quneitra was founded in the Ottoman era as a way station on the caravan route to Damascus and subsequently became a garrison town of some 20,000 people.

In 1946, it became part of the independent Syrian Republic within the Rif Dimashq Governorate and in 1964 became the capital of the split Quneitra Governorate.

On 10 June 1967, the last day of the Six-Day War, Quneitra came under Israeli control. It was briefly recaptured by Syria during the 1973 Yom Kippur War, but Israel regained control in its subsequent counter-offensive.

The city was almost completely destroyed before the Israeli withdrawal in June 1974. Now in Syrian-controlled part of Quneitra Governorate, Syria had refused to rebuild the city and actively discouraged resettlement in the area.

Israel was heavily criticized by the United Nations for the city's destruction, while Israel has also criticized Syria for not rebuilding Quneitra. [It was a smart move by the Syrian government not to rebuild and repopulate the city, because we all know how Israel loves to go on a rampage, smash up and break things].

During the Syrian civil war, Quneitra became a clash point between rebel forces and Syrian Arab Army. As of 2014, it became controlled by the Syrian opposition [which Israel is very, very cozy with, as documented by the UN peacekeeping forces about Israeli-"opposition" contacts in the Occupied Golan Heights, reports of the medical care given to "opposition" forces, and at least one visitation of Netanyahu to hospitalized "opposition" fighters].

In 2004, its population was estimated at 153 persons, with some 4,000 more living in the surrounding areas of the former city.

Quneitra now lies in the formerly demilitarized United Nations Disengagement Observer Force Zone (between Syrian territory and the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights), de-facto controlled by the Syrian opposition, a short distance from the Quneitra border crossing, and is populated by only a handful of families.

Quneitra was the Syrian headquarters for the Golan Heights. The Israeli capture of the city occurred in chaotic circumstances on 10 June 1967, the last day of the Six-Day War.

Quneitra was the Syrian headquarters for the Golan Heights.

The Israeli capture of the city occurred in chaotic circumstances on 10 June 1967, the last day of the Six-Day War. Israeli forces advancing towards Quneitra from the north-west prompted Syrian troops to deploy north of the city, under heavy bombardment, to defend the road to Damascus.

At 8:45 a.m., Syrian radio broadcast an announcement that the city had fallen, though it actually had not. Alarmed, the Syrian Army's redeployment turned into a chaotic retreat along the Damascus road.

Although a correction was broadcast two hours later, the Israelis took advantage of the confusion to seize Quneitra.

An armoured brigade under Colonel Albert Mandler entered Quneitra at 2:30 p.m. and found the city deserted and strewn with abandoned military equipment. One of the Israeli commanders later commented:

"We arrived almost without hindrance to the gates of Quneitra ... All around us there were huge quantities of booty. Everything was in working order. Tanks with their engines still running, communication equipment still in operation had been abandoned. We captured Quneitra without a fight."

A ceasefire was agreed later in the afternoon, leaving Quneitra under Israeli control.

In June 1967, Time magazine wrote that: "The city of El Quneitra was a ghost town, its shops shuttered, its deserted streets patrolled by Israelis on house-to-house searches for caches of arms and ammunition.

"The hills echoed with explosions as Israeli sappers systematically destroyed the miniature Maginot line from which the Syrians had shelled kibbutzim across the Sea of Galilee."

The United Nations Special Representative, Nils-Göran Gussing, visited it in July and reported that "nearly every shop and every house seemed to have been broken into and looted" and that some buildings had been set on fire after they had been stripped.

Although Israeli spokesmen told Gussing that Quneitra had actually been looted by the withdrawing Syrians, the UN representative viewed this as unlikely given the extremely short space of time between the erroneous radio announcement and the fall of the city a few hours later.

He concluded that "responsibility for this extensive looting of the town of Quneitra lay to a great extent with the Israeli forces."

The deserted city remained in Israeli hands for the next six years.

However, Israel and Syria remained in a state of war throughout this period (and, indeed, to the present day).

The town gained a fresh symbolic value; it was seen by the Syrians as "the badge of Syria's defeat, an emblem of hatred between Syria and Israel and a cross [Syrian President Hafez al-Assad] had to bear."

Syria shelled the city several times during the early 1970s; in June 1970 a Syrian armored unit launched an attack, and in November 1972, Damascus radio announced that Syrian artillery had again shelled Quneitra.

During the first few days of the Yom Kippur War in 1973, Quneitra was briefly recaptured by the Syrian Army before it was repulsed in an Israeli counter-offensive.

In the middle of October 1973 the Israeli counter-offensive started. The Syrians had massed nearly 1,000 tanks along a 100 km (60 mi) front. With a massive concentration of tanks, the Israelis lashed into the Syrian forces.

The Syrians at first fell back, but then managed to counterattack and drive back into occupied territory. Quneitra changed hands several times.

Finally, Israeli armored units, closely supported by [American-made] Phantoms and Skyhawks performing close air support with **napalm strikes** against the forward Syrian units, halted the Syrian drive and turned the Syrian Army back.

Israel continued to control the city until early June 1974, when it was returned to Syrian civilian control following the signature of a United States-brokered disengagement agreement signed on 31 May 1974.

The surrender of Quneitra was controversial, with Israeli settlers and the Likud and National Religious Party opposing it.

[Trump is eyeball deep in Netanyahu's Likud Party and its Jew York supporters, and should really be considered the Likud-West presidential candidate with Likudnik advisors along with his Judeo-Zionist advisors, including advisors from the Settler movement.

Hand in hand are Trump's neocon Zio-Christian advisors and running mate Pence and his retired military advisors, and the pro-Israel Phalangist Lebanese-American advisors like Walid Phares, who looks forward to the idea of establishing a Maronite Christian buffer state in southern Lebanon. Which of course means going to war with Hezbollah.

That Clinton is also for this goes without saying, considering her and her husband's long-standing in the decades long chain of "Creative Chaos" events which is the hallmark of American Exceptionalism, a messianic state religion founded by neocon publishing magnate Henry Luce and his "American Century [Empire] ideology.]

According to Michael Mandelbaum, the agreement provided that the city was to be repopulated to serve as evidence of peaceful Syrian intentions, by doing so it would encourage the Israelis to pull back further.

In an attempt to block the withdrawal, a group of settlers from Merom Golan – a settlement established in 1967 – took over an abandoned bunker in Quneitra and declared it to be a new settlement called Keshet (Quneitra in Hebrew).

The settlers also set about razing the existing town to the ground. The leader of Merom Golan, Yehuda Harel, and another Merom Golan member, Shimshon Wollner, initiated the destruction of Quneitra, which was carried out by the Land Development Administration of the Jewish National Fund. Harel later described what happened:

Shimshon and I walked around Quneitra all day and tried decide what to do. And then these two strange ideas came up. One was to establish a settlement in Quneitra and the second was to destroy Quneitra.

Wollner and Harel asked the Jewish National Fund to carry out the work, ostensibly to prepare an area for agricultural cultivation, but were refused as they did not have permission from the Israeli army. They then approached the Assistant to the Head of Northern Command and asked him to mark on a map which buildings the army needed. According to Harel,

"So he took a felt pen and marked the hospital and a few other places – he wrote "not for destruction" and on other places he wrote "for destruction" and he signed. He thought he was signing about what not to destroy but he was actually writing to destroy . . . The tractors of the Jewish National Fund did the destroying. They weren't our tractors . . . I can tell you that even the tractor drivers were Arabs."

The buildings were systematically stripped, with anything movable being removed and sold to Israeli contractors, before they were pulled apart with tractors and bulldozers.

The disengagement went into force on 6 June. On 26 June, the Syrian president Hafez al-Assad travelled to Quneitra where he pledged to return the rest of the occupied territories to Syrian control.

Western reporters accompanied Syrian refugees returning to the city in early July 1974 and described what they saw on the ground. Time magazine's correspondent reported that "Most of its buildings are knocked flat, as though by dynamite, or pockmarked by shellfire."

Le Monde's Syria correspondent, in a report for The Times, gave a detailed eyewitness description of the destruction:

Today the city is unrecognisable. The houses with their roofs lying on the ground look like gravestones. Parts of the rubble are covered with fresh earth furrowed by bulldozer tracks.

Everywhere there are fragments of furniture, discarded kitchen utensils, Hebrew newspapers dating from the first week of June; here a ripped-up mattress, there the springs of an old sofa. On the few sections of wall still standing, Hebrew inscriptions proclaim: "There'll be another round"; "You want Quneitra, you'll have it destroyed."

[And, if true to form as they do in their periodic "lawn mowing" of Gaza, West Bank and East Jerusalem, the occupying forces probably also defiled the Quneitra homes and buildings by crapping and urinating in them, smearing their shit everywhere and writing messages with it.]

Israel asserted that most of the damage had been caused in the two wars and during the artillery duels in between.

Several reports from before the withdrawal did refer to the city as “ruined” and “shell-scarred”.

The Times’ correspondent saw the city for himself on 6 May, a month before the Israeli withdrawal, and described it as being “in ruins and deserted after seven years of war and dereliction.

“It looks like a wild west city struck by an earthquake and if the Syrians get it back they will face a major feat of reconstruction. Nearly every building is heavily damaged and scores have collapsed.”

Direct evidence of the city’s condition was provided when it was filmed on 12 May 1974 by a British television news team which included the veteran journalist Peter Snow, who was reporting for Independent Television News on the disengagement negotiations.

His report was broadcast on ITN’s News at Ten programme. According to The Times’ correspondent Edward Mortimer, “viewers were thus afforded a panoramic view of the city, which had stood almost completely empty since the Syrian army evacuated it in 1967. It could be seen that many of the buildings were damaged, but most of them were still standing.”

After it was handed over, “very few buildings were left standing. Most of those destroyed did not present the jagged outline and random heaps of rubble usually produced by artillery or aerial bombardment.

“The roofs lay flat on the ground, ‘pancaked’ in a manner which I am told can only be achieved by systematic dynamiting of the support walls inside.”

Mortimer concluded that the footage “establishes beyond reasonable doubt that much of the destruction took place after 12 May—at a time when there was no fighting anywhere near Quneitra.”

The United Nations established a Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Population of the Occupied Territories, which concluded that Israeli forces had deliberately destroyed the city prior to their withdrawal.

The report’s conclusions were subsequently adopted by the United Nations General Assembly. It passed a resolution on 29 November 1974 describing the destruction of Quneitra as “a grave breach of the [Fourth] Geneva Convention” and “condemn[ing] Israel for such acts,” by a margin of 93 votes to 8, with 74 abstentions.

The United Nations Commission on Human Rights also voted to condemn the “deliberate destruction and devastation” of Quneitra in a resolution of 22 February 1975, by a margin of 22 votes to one (the United States) with nine abstentions.

Enough for Wiki.

The Jews, assisting Al Nusra, are flying under the radar aggressively preparing the way to grab more land in the Golan Heights, particularly for military operations in anticipation of war with Hezbollah which will expand into Syria. There is a small part of the Golan Heights which is long-standing disputed territory between Syria and Lebanon, I believe since before the Arab-Israeli war of 1948.

Israeli warplanes attack a site east of Hadar town in Quneitra
<http://sana.sy/en/?p=87588>

Israeli enemy attacks area in Quneitra province with rockets from reconnaissance aircraft
<http://sana.sy/en/?p=87255>

The Golan Heights is a very strategic area for Syria, and naturally Israel covets and illegally occupies it for the same reason.

Tel Aviv holds the Syrian government responsible for any stray rocket fired by the Israeli-supported Syrian “opposition” in the “civil war” that strikes Israeli-occupied Syrian territory of the Golan Heights (if not by the Jews themselves as a false-flag/provocation). That way, the Jews can justify violating the Syrian-Israel cease-fire agreements with impunity.

The IOF then fires on the Syrian Arab Army, NDF, militias, or allies operating in the area against the Western-GCC-Tel Aviv backed “opposition”. Then the IOF expands temporary outposts just a tad for “strategic reasons related to national security,” that is the illegal occupation of a part of Syrian Quneitra Governate, and opens the gate to more Settler colonization.

This is what the Jews do, and have done since the 1920s, especially after 1948 when they unilaterally declared their independence as the Jewish state, having no intention to ever live up to the UN’s recommended Partition Plan.

They go to war against the Palestinians, the Lebanese, and Syrians, illegally occupy and colonize national territories with the cancerous growth of Jewish settlements, and then scream “ethnic cleansing” when the legitimate population resists, defending national sovereignty.

Street Evangelism Report
Day 3, September 8 2016
Washington DC

There were two highlights of my day out.

First, was my encounter with former NY mayor Rudy Giuliani.

Rudy, as I later learned, was about to meet with a group of business people who were, or potential, Trump supporters.

Giuliani, once I made eye contact with him, lit up with a very friendly and open face. I gave him a blessing with my Cross, which he received with an even bigger smile, and then I said to him, "Please tell Donald I'm praying for him, I'm Brother Nathanael."

"I sure will," he answered, "and thank you for that."

Second, a middle-aged woman, who was evidently a bit mentally touched, kept on berating me and calling me a "clown."

This kept up to the point where it was really annoying me. So, I went directly up to her and simply made the sign of the Cross over her.

She started throwing her arms up in the air wildly and then ran away.

She then came back later on during evening rush hour. This time, instead of berating me, she stood right next to me and posed as if she too was holding high the Holy Cross of Christ. She did not do this with any malice, but rather with a benign attitude of concord.

Ron Paul Conference
September 10, 2016
Washington DC
PART ONE REPORT
(Day 4 Street Evangelism Report Next Up)

This was a great event and I felt honored to be with 300 other likeminded people.

Many of the attendees knew me and wanted to talk with me and take pictures with me.

What is very interesting is that many of the people close to Ron Paul, including Daniel McAdams, are devout traditionalist Roman Catholics. Even Ron Paul, at one point during his keynote address, stated that he himself is a "Christian." (I'll say more about his speech later.)

The renowned Philip Giraldi gave probably the best speech of all (next to Ron Paul's) about the "deep state" and of what it is comprised in America.

He emphasized, without saying the politically-incorrect "jew word," that the larger portion was made up of the "monied" and "finance" class of the New York-DC belt.

I'm not sure how many in the audience connected the dots, but I certainly heard "jew" all over it...and probably why Philip came up to me afterward and handed me his card and said, "sometimes in speeches like this I have to come right up to the line but not cross it. But in many of my articles I break right through."

I told him that I, for one, did get it, having grown up in an upper middle class B'nai B'rith synagogue.

To Be Continued.

PS At the outset of the Conference I had a chance to talk with Ron Paul briefly and he told me that he knew he didn't have a chance of winning due to the bias against him by the "propaganda" machine but entered the race to have a better and greater reach of his message of non-intervention in foreign policy and his message of liberty.

Glory to God for all things!

What a fruitful Street Evangelism you are harvesting in Washington, DC.

And what a surprise! Your attendance at the Ron Paul Conference is just plain 24K gold for all of the people you are meeting, including Ron Paul himself.

I can't wait to read Part 2 of your report.

God bless you, dear +BN!

Reuters: Israel attacks Syrian post after stray shell crosses border

Israeli aircraft attacked a Syrian artillery post on Saturday after a stray shell from fighting in Syria's civil war landed inside the Israeli-controlled Golan Heights, Israel's military said.

The shell landed just across the border, causing no injuries, and in retaliation the air force targeted "artillery positions of the Syrian regime", the military said.

The Israeli military has responded similarly in the past when mortar fire from Syria's war has landed in the Golan, territory that Israel captured from Syria in a 1967 war.

Syrian state television quoted a Syrian military source as saying the Israeli strike was aimed at helping an offensive by hardline Islamist rebels who had launched an offensive against Syrian troops.

Israel has largely stayed on the sidelines of Syria's civil war, keeping watch over the Golan Heights frontier and occasionally carrying out air strikes or returning mortar fire if there is a specific threat.

( reuters.com/article/us-mideast-crisis-syria-israel-idUSKCN11G0R1 )

Notice how Reuters studiously doesn't mention that the Golan Heights are occupied Syrian territory, the "frontier" is the frontier of Syria's internationally recognized borders, and the Syrian artillery posts are clearly on sovereign Syrian soil.

Reuters bends over backwards attempting to minimize the long substantiated accusation that Damascus made as reported by SANA state television that Israel is supporting and assisting the Syrian "rebel" forces in southern Syria which are actually al Nusra (or whatever they are named now to make them transform into "moderate rebels").

Nothing serious to pay attention to, just the state TV and its usual propaganda. Which happens to be true propaganda that Reuters would rather you not notice.

However, pro-Israel neocon Newsweek ran a piece over a year ago about "Israel's Secret War in Syria" and part of the story is about this very thing, along with Israel's covert war against Iran in Syria.

"Which is perhaps why Israel seems content with having radical Islamist militants on yet another border—at least for now: Its enemies—both the Islamists and Assad—are fighting one another, and the Druze who support the Syrian government may soon become unlikely allies of the Jewish state.

"Our situation in the northern arena has never been better," General Yair Golan, the Israeli deputy chief of general staff, said in early June.

"Throughout Syria and Lebanon, there are international jihadi organizations which do not act against us and are busy fighting Assad, Hezbollah and Iranian forces."

NSNBC International:

Israel Starts Home Demolitions in Syrian Golan, Plans Illegal Annexation, Opens "Corridor" for Syrian Al Qaeda

Israeli occupation authorities in the occupied Syrian Golan Heights, on Wednesday, for the first time demolished a home, claiming it was built without permission.

The demolition and claims the house was built without permission violates Israel's obligations under international law, according to which an occupying power must assure that administration in occupied territories adhere, to the greatest possible degree, to the law of the occupied country's territory.

Israel has, however, enforced new Hebrew as official administrative language, denies building permits and engages in other violations of international law that aim at oppressing the Arab population and culture and Syrian administration in the occupied Golan.

Al Marsad, which is the only human rights organization that operates in the Golan, reported that hundreds of Israeli police accompanied by bulldozers demolished the home of Bassam Ibrahim in Majdal Shams, the largest town in the Israeli occupied Golan. In a statement, Al Marsad said:

"This is the first time that the Israeli authorities have demolished a home in Majdal Shams. ... The destruction of this home marks the adoption of a new systematic policy of home demolitions by the Israeli authorities in the remaining Syrian villages in the Occupied Syrian Golan.

"The Syrian owners of dozens of other homes have been threatened with similar action. ... As a result of the severe restrictions imposed by Israeli planning and construction committees, it is close to impossible for the Syrian population to obtain the necessary building permits.

"Therefore, the Syrian population is forced to build homes without building permits, as this is the only way to meet their housing needs given unprecedented levels of overcrowding".

The rights organization accused Israel of preventing the Syrian population from building in their cities while encouraging and facilitating the construction and expansion of illegal Israeli settlements in the Golan Heights. Israel occupied the Syrian Golan Heights after the June 1967 war.

Israel's continued occupation violates international law and has been opposed by several UN General Assembly resolutions.

None of the UN Security Council's five permanent members (P5), however, has taken any tangible steps that would be consistent with their mandate and obligation to end the illegal occupation.

The failure of UN Security Council and the UN system as a whole has emboldened Israel to declare that "Israel and the Golan are part and parcel".

In June 2013 an Austrian United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) officer explained that Israel was maintaining a joint intelligence and operations room with "Syrian rebels".

Warnings by Syrian UN Envoy Dr. Al-Hamwi, in July 2013, to the effect that Israel commits methodical crimes in the Golan were ignored by the UN Security Council (UNSC).

By mid-2013, reports about the Israeli involvement in the war on Syria via the Israeli occupied Syrian Golan and in the UNDOF controlled neutral zone slowly made it to some of the Western and Arab media.

The administration of Israel's PM Benjamin Netanyahu transformed that, what could have developed into a PR nightmare, into a propaganda success when Netanyahu visited an Israeli field hospital for "Syrian opposition fighters".

Times of Israel (June 2015): General says next Hezbollah war theater will extend to Syria

Northern Command head Aviv Kochavi says shifting security reality a 'small dot' in regional trajectory

Nine years after the Second Lebanon War, the army's chief commander in the north said last week that a future round of fighting against Hezbollah will be conducted across two fronts.

"It's clear to me that the next campaign against Hezbollah will take place in Syria and in Lebanon," said OC Northern Command Maj. Gen. Aviv Kochavi at an evening devoted to the situation in Lebanon held at the IDF Galilee Division headquarters.

Kochavi, as quoted by the army's weekly news magazine Bamahane, described this new security reality as "a small dot" amid the sea changes in the region.

Since the Syrian civil war, which broke out in March 2011, Hezbollah has been fighting in Syria on behalf of Bashar Assad's regime.

A senior IDF officer, who recently described Hezbollah as in "strategic distress," noted in a mid-June briefing that it now has 6,000-8,000 fighters operating in Syria and Iraq, along with advisers in Yemen.

"The last thing they want is to open a front against us," the officer said.

Nonetheless, the dwindling Syrian sovereignty on its side of the Golan Heights has opened up new territory to Hezbollah. In January, several senior Hezbollah operatives were killed in an airstrike on the Syrian side of the Golan Heights.

The attack, claiming the lives of Jihad Mughniyeh and Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps Brig. Gen. Mohammad Ali Allahdadi, was said to be part of an effort to establish a Hezbollah front against Israel in Syria, thereby preventing Israeli retaliation against Lebanon.

"This is an Iranian effort in cooperation with Hezbollah to open a front against us in the Golan Heights," Defense Minister Moshe Ya'alon told Army Radio on January 25. "That is the incident. What were dealing with in essence is a co-production."

In response, Hezbollah retaliated with a strike on Mount Dov, killing two Israeli soldiers and wounding seven. The attack, on contested territory and against soldiers, did not escalate into war.

Since the 34-day war in 2006, the Lebanon front has been quiet. A future conflict, though, will likely feature 1,500 rockets per day on Israel, the outgoing head of the IDF Home Front Command told the Times of Israel in April.

"I say to the other side: I do not have the color to shade in what Beirut will look like in the next war," Maj. Gen. Eyal Eisenberg said at the time. "It will be far more gloomy, more painful, more black."

Times of Israel (Sept 2016): Hezbollah to move into south Syria, just across Israel border IDF says it's watching and 'prepared for any scenario' as the Shiite terror group sets up shop next door

Hezbollah fighters are preparing to move into southern Syria, a stone's throw from the border with Israel's Golan Heights, Iranian state media reported Monday.

Get The Times of Israel's Daily Edition by email and never miss our top stories FREE SIGN UP!

"Hezbollah has deployed a large number of its forces at Quneitra passage which has connected the Syrian territories to the occupied Golan," unnamed sources told the semi-official Fars news agency.

According to the sources, the Hezbollah fighters will be taking part in an "anti-terrorism" operation with Syrian ruler Bashar Assad's army to fight the various militant groups located in the Syrian Golan Heights.

The IDF would not comment specifically on the reports that Hezbollah would be taking positions close to the Israeli border, but said it "closely monitors all of Israel's borders, including in the north, and remains prepared for any scenario."

The Syrian Army, the Fateh al-Sham Front and the Khalid ibn al-Walid Army have been waging a bloody war in southern Syria, which occasionally spills over into Israeli territory [sic — occupied Syrian Golan Heights].

The salafist Fateh al-Sham Front, an affiliate of al-Qaeda, is the new name for the group formerly known as the al-Nusra Front.

The group changed its name on July 28, the same day it was recognized as a terrorist organization by the United States and Iran. The next day Russia joined them in declared it terrorist and the day after that, the United Nations followed suit.

Similarly, the Khalid ibn al-Walid Army is another successor to a terrorist organization that had been operating out of the Syrian Golan Heights in recent months: the Yarmouk Martyr’s Brigade.

In May, the Islamic State-affiliated Yarmouk Martyr’s Brigade merged with two smaller IS groups in the area, the Islamic Muthanna Movement and the Army of Jihad, to form the Khalid ibn al-Walid Army.

“The Syrian army and Hezbollah fighters have been working on a joint plan to end militancy in Southern Syria, particularly near the Golan Heights,” the sources told Fars.

An attempt by the United States and Russia to broker a partial peace deal in Syria fell through this week, though both sides said they were committed to continuing the effort.

Washington and Moscow support opposing sides in the five-year conflict, which has killed upwards of 300,000 people and forced millions to flee.

The next is not a dead issue, merely went low profile.

Tel Aviv is working out operations against Hezbollah, and new tactical strategies anticipating the SAA and allied advances into southern Syria to open a front against al Nusra, now rebranded as a a “moderate” militant Islamist group that the US of Israel can legally support. Israel is preparing for a new war in south Lebanon, and whatever they do, they’ll fold their Golan Heights strategy into it.

Whatever phony Syrian “opposition” shell group for the CIA that is deemed a negotiating authority will likely toss this pile of chips on the table at some point.

Netanyahu has stated numerous times that the Zionist carbuncle will not relinquish the stolen Syrian land they are squatting on justified under color of Israeli law.

Haaretz (2014): Report: Syrian Opposition Willing to Trade Golan Claims for Israeli Military Support

Top opposition official tells Al Arab newspaper militant groups want Israel to enforce a no-fly zone.

The Syrian opposition is willing to give up claims to the Golan Heights in return for cash and Israeli military aid against President Bashar Assad, a top opposition official told Al Arab newspaper, according to a report in Al Alam.

“Why shouldn’t we be able to sell the Golan Heights because it is better than losing Syria and Golan at once,” Kamal al-Labwani, a prominent member of the Syrian opposition, told the Arab newspaper, according Al Alam, an Arabic language Iran state-owned media outlet.

The Western-backed militant groups want Israel to enforce a no-fly zone over parts of southern Syria to protect rebel bases from air strikes by Assad’s forces, according to the report.

Syrian government forces backed by Hezbollah militants took full control of the town of Yabroud on Sunday after driving out rebels, helping President Bashar Assad secure the land route linking the capital Damascus to Aleppo and the Mediterranean coast on the third anniversary of Syria’s civil war.

The fall of Yabroud, the last rebel bastion near the Lebanese border, could choke off a vital insurgent supply line from Lebanon and consolidate government control over a swathe of territory from Damascus to the central city of Homs

Washington DC
PART TWO REPORT

Ron Paul said in his speech he was a "Christian" but then said he was inimical to theocracy.

They also had a speaker there, Brian McGlitchy of 28pages.org, who spoke on his work of 'exposing' the Saudis role in 'funding the Muslim terrorists' who 'did' 9/11.

At Q and A time I asked Ron Paul if it was politically incorrect for the Ron Paul Institute to explore the possibility that Mossad perhaps did 9/11, and if there was Saudi involvement, was it only as an adjunct to a Mossad op?"

He started fudging around and finally said there was insufficient evidence to prove it in a court of law. I replied that Thermite particles were found and that the findings of credible researchers pointed to interior demolition devices, and how Silverstein pulled down WTC 7.

Ron Paul then answered, "yes, it came right down on its footprints, next question."

Many people thanked me for challenging the unsupportable "Saudi" presentation.

I kept saying to them, "Aipac loves that kind of presentation. McGlitchy should contact them and they'll have him speak at THEIR next Aipac Conference!"

So who is running the Trump campaign for President of the United States of Israel (POTUSI) anyway?

Trump? Or Netanyahu through Trump's Jewish advisors?

~~~*~~~

Haaretz: Trump Campaign Sides With Netanyahu: Palestinians Seek 'Ethnic Cleansing' of Jews

Trump's adviser on U.S.-Israel relations tells Haaretz that Palestinians want 'their so-called state' to be, 'as the Nazis said, judenrein' or devoid of Jews.

Donald Trump's adviser on U.S.-Israeli relations told Haaretz Sunday that the Obama administration "should be ashamed of their misguided reaction" to remarks by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

In a Facebook video published over the weekend, Netanyahu said that support for the removal of Israeli settlements in the West Bank, as part of a two-state peace deal with the Palestinian Authority, was the equivalent of advocating for the "ethnic cleansing" of Jews.

"Prime Minister Netanyahu makes exactly the right point. The Palestinians want Israel to absorb countless 'refugees' - people who never lived in Israel and whose ancestors were never forced to leave Israel - while their so-called 'state' is required to be, as the Nazis said, judenrein (devoid of Jews).

"It is an entirely racist and anti-Semitic position," David Friedman, the Trump adviser, related in an email exchange.

Contrary to Friedman's assertion, many of the 700,000 Palestinian refugees in the 1947-1949 War of Independence were forcibly expelled by the Israeli army.

"Arabs live [as second class non-Jewish Israeli citizens-Kj] and work side by side with Israelis in the State of Israel.

"They attend universities, enjoy the strongest human and civil rights (including women's rights) in the region, and have access to world class health care.

"There is no better place for Arabs to live in the Middle East than in the State of Israel.

"With this background in mind, the Prime Minister of Israel correctly observes that the Palestinian demand to remove all Jews from their ancestral homeland in Judea and Samaria [Occupied Palestine Territory] is nothing short of an attempt at ethnic cleansing.

"The State Department should be ashamed of their misguided reaction to Mr. Netanyahu's remarks," Friedman said.

"The United States frequently refers to the 'two state solution' as two states for two peoples. The Palestinian response - which the US State Department refuses to challenge - is 'one state for two peoples (Israel) and a second state just for Palestinian Arabs.'

"It is no wonder that the State Department under Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama have lost credibility in the region.”

The Obama administration responded angrily on Friday to the video posted on Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu’s Facebook page in which he indicated that those advocating for the uprooting of Israeli West Bank settlements as part of two-state peace deal were calling for the “ethnic cleansing” of Jews.

“Israel’s diversity shows its openness and readiness for peace” Netanyahu said in the video.

“Yet the Palestinian leadership actually demands a Palestinian state with one pre-condition: No Jews. There’s a phrase for that: It’s called ethnic cleansing. And this demand is outrageous. It’s even more outrageous that the world doesn’t find this outrageous.”

State Department spokeswoman Elizabeth Trudeau reacted to the video in a press conference, saying that “using that type of terminology is inappropriate and unhelpful.”

Trudeau added that the Obama administration, as well as all previous American administrations and the entire international community, believe that the continued building of settlements is an obstacle to peace.

Echoing Friedman, Marc Zell, co-chair of Republicans Overseas’ Israel chapter promised that the absence of such “interference” in Israel’s relationship with the Palestinians “will be a major change under a Trump administration.”

“The Prime Minister’s statement was entirely appropriate and his reference to ethnic cleansing is not out of order in any respect,” said Zell, a resident of the Gush Etzion settlement of Tekoa, who also serves as vice president of the international organization Republicans Overseas.

Zell said that the Trump campaign, in keeping with the Republican party platform which Zell helped shape at the party’s convention in July, would never take such a position.

“Our candidate, Donald Trump, has stated on more than one occasion that when it comes to building in the Land of Israel - whether it is homes, businesses or schools - that is a decision for the Israeli people alone and it is not something the U.S. government needs to interfere in,” Zell told Haaretz.

“Trump believes it is for the Israelis and Palestinians to work out among themselves, and that it’s not appropriate for the United States to weigh in on the dispute in a manner that clearly favors one side - the Palestinian side.”

Zell and the local Trump team in Israel unveiled a makeshift traveling office in the West Bank last week, touting it as the first campaign office for a U.S. presidential candidate ever opened over the “Green Line” – a reference to Israel’s internationally recognized borders.

They plan to move the new West Bank office to various settlements over the course of the campaign.

There are also Israeli Trump campaign offices in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and Modi’in devoted to registering American citizens in Israel to vote and convincing them to vote for Trump and the Republican ticket.

Sources close to the Israeli campaign told Haaretz that “hundreds of thousands of dollars” had been invested in encouraging and assisting American supporters of the Republican Party living in Israel to vote.

The efforts in Israel, spearheaded by Republicans Overseas, are not directly funded by or directly affiliated with either the Republican Party or the Trump campaign.

They do, however, coordinate closely with both in order to remain, according to Zell, “on the same page.”

Israeli settler runs over, kills 6 year old Palestinian girl

A Palestinian girl was killed Saturday when a Jewish settler ran her over with his vehicle in the southern occupied West Bank, according to the Palestinian Ministry of Health.

“A Palestinian was killed after she was run over by a Jewish settler’s car near al-Khader village located near Bethlehem city in northern West Bank,” the Palestinian Ministry of Health said in a statement.

Eyewitnesses said the driver fled the scene.

The ministry identified the dead Palestinian girl as 6-year-old Lama Musa.

Later in the evening, Israeli police issued a statement saying he had turned himself in and that he claimed he did not run the girl over on purpose.

Tensions have been especially high since an uptick in Israeli-Palestinian violence began last October.

According to Palestinian figures, close to 235 Palestinians have been killed since then.

Israel, for its part, says 40 Israelis have been killed over the same period.

In liberal socialist Democrat California, a felony conviction for hit and run accident resulting in death is punishable by:

- Imprisonment for up to 4 years; or
- A fine between $1,000 and $10,000 dollars; or
- Both, imprisonment and a fine.

I seriously doubt that this felonious settler will be punished by anything remotely close to this liberal state's punishment. Might even have a party thrown for him back at the kibbutz.

Yes, "ancestral Judea and Samaria" (occupied West Bank) is a lovely place for a Palestinian Arab to be, HSM Bibsy.

How true — your mention of Jewry's agenda (and it is indeed Jewish-dominated and led) to "Promote homosexuality, lesbianism, transgenderism, and all types of sexual perversion": and here's one group going all out to do that:

Keshet describes itself as "a national organization that works for full LGBTQ equality and inclusion in Jewish life." Founded in 1996, it actually does NOT just confine itself to Jewish life.

While at university in UK in the mid-1970s, gay/lesbian student groups were already established. Little did I know we were also heading for full perversion to include legalized incest, and no doubt not too far down the road .... legalized pedophilia.

It's so sick out there, I struggle to breathe sometimes, and cry for the day-to-day perverted exposure healthy and pure children's minds are corrupted with.

Seek The Truth

September 11, 2016 @ 5:41 pm

I communicated with a U.S. soldier just before the Iraq War, and told him that they would go after every Arab within 1,500 miles of Saddam Hussein, and that the last Arab country they would try to demonize would be Saudi Arabia.

The "Teardrop" sculpture given to victims of 911 by Russia which stands in New Jersey shows a huge metallic teardrop coming down between blasted walls and it's been suggested that the Russians wanted to demonstrate that the teardrop symbolized the molten slag that poured down from the Towers which would have been impossible with just a kerosene jet fuel fire.

It was more like micro nukes hotter than the surface of the sun that made the steel girder cores melt and vaporize so that the whole thing could come down like a "house of cards".

The Jews that run Israel are realizing some American saps are getting wise.

Just like with the assassination of JFK, Jewish media never mentions the Mossad even though Israel had the most to gain from both cases.

JFK was enemy number 1 who wanted to shut down Israel's nuclear weapons program, and 911 was necessary to get a huge killer war against Arabs in the Middle East in order for Jews to take over the Middle East for "Greater Israel".
